

Bringing education to incarcerated people

Driving change through education

Incarcerated individuals face numerous challenges in their journey toward rehabilitation, reentry, and successful employment.

Providing access to quality education and training programs is crucial in overcoming these challenges and improving outcomes.

Policymakers and legislators have an opportunity to transform the education and training programs available to incarcerated individuals. To maximize the impact of these efforts, we recommend the following principles be considered when evaluating and implementing e-learning solutions.

Principles for high quality education

Free access to education

In-person instruction

Accredited courses

Dedicated devices

Customizable learning

Student learning records

Agency-owned network

Secure
servers

